Quality and Safety: What we expect from our Suppliers

Central Oceans expects and enforces both quality and safety from its pool of subcontracted partner companies. Central Oceans employs a system of continuous audit through the use of on-site Site Managers at each cargo touch point or transload point throughout the supply chain.

This hands-on high-touch strategy is part of what sets Central Oceans apart from other third-party logistics companies or typical freight forwarders. Our on-site personnel ensure that our standards of safety and quality are adhered to by our subcontractors. Pre-project movement plans and method statements are created and subcontractors must abide by these plans or face loss of the ability to work with Central Oceans.
