

Social Responsibility

Wheelspluswings

Wheelspluswings seeks to lift the expectations of what children who are "Differently-Abled" (our term for physical disabilities) can do in life, and particularly change attitudes about what is possible in Asia. Our goal is to erase the mental and physical fences between able-bodied and less able-bodied individuals, in the minds of the families, the communities in which they live, and the children themselves. The hope is that if we expose more people in China to success stories of children with disabilities attending school, going to University, getting jobs and becoming happy contributing members of society, that fewer parents will then abandon their own babies born with disabilities, at birth; and fewer will hide the ones they keep. Moreover we would like more people to realise that all children deserve the chance of a happy life and more can achieve it. If you want to know more about this cause, please visit them at www.wheelspluswings.com or ask us anytime.
